

§ 2. EXPORT DUTIES.

On the goods mentioned in supplement B of this review which are exported from the customs territory an export duty is levied up to the amounts stated in the general tariff contained in that supplement.

Besides, for various districts situated in the customs territory outside Java and Madura, special tariffs are in force (see supplement C) for the export of forest and other produce from such districts, viz :

bees' wax;
 benzoin, dammar, gutta-percha, india rubber and other gums and resins;
 birds' skins;
 cocoanuts;
 ivory and rhinoceros horn;
 „kulit bakaw" and „kulit tengar";
 pinang;
 rattans of alle kinds;
 sago and sago flour;
 stag horns;
 tenkawang kernels and tengkawang or suntai fat;
 tobacco prepared for the native market;
 wood, with the exception of wood for shipbuilding and timber, in addition to masts, booms, oars and other round timber; and other specified forest produce.

Seeing that the export duties on the above mentioned products are not imposed in all the districts belonging to the customs territory and are not the same for those districts where they do exist, it has been provided that an export duty imposed in a certain district shall also be due when goods are transported by sea to places situated within the customs territory, where the articles to be exported are not liable to export duty.

Should the exportation take place to localities situated in the customs territory where the outgoing article is liable to export duty according to equal units and rates, or according to different units and rates, the same shall only be collected on re-exportation of the goods from the place to which they are exported, according to the tariff applicable in such locality, provided that, if the duty fixed in such tariff should be lower than that charge-
