

CHAPTER XV.

Life and manners in Uganda—The Peasant—The Chief—The Emperor—The Land	PAGE 241
---	-------------

CHAPTER XVI.

TO MUTA NZIGÉ AND BACK TO UGANDA.

The ladies of Mtesa's family—Sambuzi ordered to take me to Muta Nzigé—My last evening with Mtesa— En route for Muta Nzigé—Sambuzi suffers from the "big head"—We come to an understanding—The white people of Gambaragara—War music—Through a deserted country—Sinister auguries—A cowards' council of war—Panic in the camp—Sambuzi announces his intention of deserting me—The flight when none pursued—The "Spoiler" eaten up—Mtesa tries to persuade me to return—At Kafurro	263
---	-----

CHAPTER XVII.

Kafurro and its magnates—Lake Windermere—Rumanika, the gentle king of Karagwé—His country—The Ingezi—Among the mosquitoes—Ihema Island—The triple cones of Ufumbiro—Double-horned rhinoceros—The hot springs of Mtagata—The Geographical Society of Karagwé—The philosophy of noses—Rumanika's thesauron—Some new facts about the rhinoceros and elephant—Uhimba—Paganus, var. esuriens —Retrospect	288
--	-----

CHAPTER XVIII.

The twin rivers—Mankorongo balked of his loot—Poor Bull! True to the death—Msenna breaks out again—The Terror of Africa appears on the scene—Mars at peace—"Dig potatoes, potatoes, potatoes"—Mirambo, the bandit chief, and I make blood-brotherhood—Little kings with "big heads"—Practical conversion of the chief of Ubagwé—The Watuta, the Ishmaelites of Africa—Their history—African nomenclature—From Msené across the Malagarazi to Ujiji—Sad memories	308
---	-----

CHAPTER XIX.

Ujiji, its scenery, residents, market, and vicinity—Arab rivals—The circumnavigation of the Tanganika—Commander Cameron and the outflowing Lukuga—The encroaching waters—The legend of the Lake—Evening	326
---	-----

CHAPTER XX.

The Lady Alice afloat again—Her mate and crew—Anxiety on her behalf—On hallowed ground—Unwelcome visitors: in the haunts of the Ruga-Ruga—The aborigines' last retreat—A scene of blood—The robbers of the Lake, and their tutelary spirits—A geological problem: were there once two lakes?—Rising waters—The abode of the genii—A storm—Forest fires—At the mouth of Cameron's "outlet"—The Lukuga creek	337
---	-----